off in their own carriage, which is dressed in white ribbons, the coachman and groom wearing white loupes, and all favors adorning the horses' ears, and for them to take a month's honeymoon. There is also the bride (if she be Hannah de Rothschild or the Baroness Burdett-Guthrie) gives her bridesmaids very elegant presents, as a pocket or a bracelet, while the groom gives the best man a scarf-pin or some gift. The American custom is not so universal. However, either bride or groom gives something to the bridesmaid and a scarf-pin to each usher. Thus a wedding becomes a very expensive and elaborate affair, which quiet and economical people are sometimes obliged to avoid.

After the marriage invitation is issued, the lady does not appear in public. The period of court-leaving after a wedding is not yet definitely fixed. Some authorities say ten days, but that in a city with an immense acquaintance would be quite impossible.

If only invited to the church, many ladies consider that they perform their whole duty by leaving a card some time during the winter, and including the young couple in their subsequent invitations. Very rigorous people call, however, within ten days, and if invited to the house, the card is still more imperative, and should be made soon after the wedding.

But if a young couple do not send their future address, but only invite one to a church wedding, there is often a very serious difficulty in knowing where to call, and the first visit must be definitely postponed until they send cards notifying their friends of their whereabouts. Wedding invitations require no answer. But people living at a distance, who cannot attend, should send their cards by mail, to assure the hosts that the invitation has been received. The usual form for wedding cards is this:

MR. AND MRS. THEODORE J. WALTON request you to present to the marriage of their daughter, on Wednesday evening, November 24th, at 8 o'clock at the Church.

At Home
at 7 o'clock on the same evening.

It is also included. Such at least is one of the forms used in October, 1881.

People with a large acquaintance cannot always invite all their friends, of course, to a wedding reception, and therefore invite all to the church. Sometimes people who are to give a small wedding at home request an answer to the wedding invitation, in that case, of course, an answer should be sent, and people should be very careful not to ignore these flattering invitations. Any carelessness is inexcusable when so important an event as the topic. Bridesmaids, if prevented by illness or sudden bereavement, from officiating, should notify the bride, as it is a difficult thing after a bridal cortege is arranged to make it over.

As to the wedding tour, it is no longer considered obligatory, nor the seclusion of the honeymoon demanded. A very fashionable girl who married an Englishman last summer at Newport returned in three days to take her own home at Newport, to receive and give out invitations. If the newly-married pair thus begin housekeeping in their own way, they generally lose a few "At Home" cards, and thereby open an easy door for future importunities. Certainly the once perfunctory bridal tour is no longer deemed essential, and the more sensible fashion exists of the taking of a friend home for a few weeks out of town for a month.

If the bride pair go to a watering place during their early married days, they should be very careful of outward display of tenderness.

Such exhibitions in the cars or in public places as one often sees, of the bride laying her head on her husband's shoulder, holding hands or kissing are at once vulgar and indecent. All public display of an affectionate nature should be sedulously avoided. The affections are too sacred for such outward showing, and the lovers on a very disagreeable position. The French call love-making l'ouïsme à deux, and no egotism is agreeable. People who see a lot of young couples cooling in public are apt to say that a quarrel is not far off. It is possible for a lover to show every attention, every assiduity, and not to overdo the thing. It is quite possible for the lady to be fond of her husband without committing the slightest offense against good taste.

The young couple are not expected, unless fortune has been exceptionally kind, to be immediately responsive in the matter of entertainments. The outer world is only too happy to entertain them.

But the announcement of a day on which the bride will receive her friends is almost indispensable. The refreshments on these occasions should not exceed tea and cake, and at the most, punch, tea, chocolate, and cake, which may stand on a table at one end of the room, or may be handed by a waiter. Bonbons on a cold day in winter is also in order, and is perhaps the most serviceable of all simple refreshments; for in giving a "clock tea," or several day receptions, a large entertainment is vulgar. Results from imperfect digestion. The cause lies in the torpidity of the liver. A regular habit of body can be secured by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator to stimulate the dull and sluggish liver and rid the system of excessive and poisonous bile. The Regulator corrects acidity of the stomach, cures dyspepsia and permanently creates regularity of the bowels, affords free from fatigues or inconvenience. It has never been or tried such a simple, efficacious, satisfactory and pleasant remedy in its life as Simmons' Liver Regulator. Dr. H. W. H. St. Louis, Missouri.

A Romantic Story.

Col. Albert G. Pelton, whose beautiful

20,000-acre ranch is out toward the El

Tram, near Leno, has been the Peter the Herald of the Texas for years. He came to Texas in 1844, a common soldier, his talent and courage he rose to the rank of Colonel, and finally, in 1866, commanded Fort Macrae. That year he fell in love with a beautiful Spanish girl at Albuquerque,

New Mexico. The admiration of the young people was mutual, and parental objections only intensified the affection of the lovers. Finally, after two years of entreaty and devotion, Col. Pelton won the consent of the parents of the beautiful

Spanish girl and they were married.

The day the two, accompanied by the young wife's mother and twenty soldiers, rode out to the hot springs, six miles from the fort to take a bath. While in the bath which is near the Rio Grande, an Indian arrow passed over their heads. Then a shower of arrows fell around them, and a band of wild Apache Indians rushed down upon them, whooping and yelling like a band of demons. Several of the soldiers fell dead, pierced with poisoned arrows.

This frightened the rest, who fled. Another shower of arrows, and the beautiful bride and her mother dropped into the hands, pierced by the cruel weapons of the Apaches. With his life ebbing before his eyes, Col. Pelton dashed up the banks,
